

THOUSANDS VIOLATE CITY TRAFFIC RULES WILFULLY, CHARGE

Expect No Punishment Because of Limited Police Force.

STUPID DRIVERS HELD ALSO TO BE MENACE

New Left-Hand Turns and Overloading Among Other Provisions Ignored.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN (Automobile Editor of The Post).

What is wrong with Washington traffic? Further study of this question, which was asked in an article in The Post yesterday, in which were set forth the fundamental aspects of a situation that amazes intelligent observers, indicates:

First, that there exists an abiding ignorance on the part of thousands of drivers of the requirements of the local traffic regulations, and

Second, a disposition on the part of thousands of other who do know the regulations to violate them when and where they will because they feel their acts will be unpunished in view of the limited enforcement which the undermanned police department is able or willing to give to the traffic code.

Two Dangerous Types.

Traffic authorities, generally, are unable to agree which is the greater menace to street and highway safety, the driver ignorant of the regulations or the wilful violator of them. It is universally agreed, however, that both are dangerous types and that public safety demands their removal from the traffic operator's permits, or their removal through the application of severe penalties by strict enforcement of the law.

"The driver who, through stupidity, can not conform, or the one who, through wilful irresponsibility of selfishness, will not conform to the demands of safety, is unfit to operate a motor vehicle today," says one of the keenest traffic minds in this country. "If he can not be taught, out he must go."

Those who decry the continued deplorable traffic situation in the National Capital, a situation that persists in spite of the admitted soundness of the local traffic code, accept this opinion with the vigorous warning-out that it implies. If this process of elimination requires more diligence on the part of the police department or enlargement of the department, or both, they are convinced there is no other alternative.

Left Turn Provision Ignored.

As an evidence of the fact that there is a large proportion of local drivers ignorant of the regulations, one need look no further than the new left-turn provision of the code which has been effective here for more than 40 days now. Whereas the new regulation requires that such turns at police or light-controlled intersections be made from the right-hand lane, many drivers still persist in pulling over near the policeman, as under the old provision.

A justly and intelligently administered rebuke was given to two motorists for this display of ignorance by a policeman at a downtown intersection recently.

"Until you learn how to make a left turn you had better drive on to an intersection where there is no officer," said the policeman to each of the guilty drivers. That remark is being made many more times than it should be in a city whose population is rated as the Capital's intellectual level, according to many policemen on traffic duty.

The regulations with reference to the rights of pedestrians are believed to be the strongest illustration of not only the ignorance that prevails with respect to the present traffic code, but also as applied to the allegation of police indifference to law violations.

Pedestrian's Plight No Better.

The new regulations give the pedestrian the unequivocal right-of-way over vehicular traffic making right turns at all police or light-controlled intersections. They require that vehicles so turning wait until the way is clear. Yet, a study of any downtown intersection during the rush hours of the morning or evening will reveal that the pedestrian's plight is but little improved over that which existed under the old provision. Motorists drive through the pedestrian line, obviously ignorant that they are violating the law, and the traffic officers are accused of letting them "get by" with the practice on an amazing scale.

At all other intersections, where there is neither an officer nor a signal light, the pedestrian has the absolute right-of-way over all vehicular traffic. Does he get it? Here is an illustration witnessed by the writer:

At Thirteenth and G streets a motorist traveling down Thirteenth in the left lane, slowed and motioned a pedestrian to cross. As he did so, a violent horn-blowing from the rear confronted the disgust of a youthful driver.

Albania President to Be King Tirana Authority Declares

Ministers Are Reported to Have Decided on Monarchy Substitute for Republican Form of Government Rule.

Tirana, Albania, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—An authoritative source today said that Albania was about to change from a republic to a monarchy, with President Ahmed Zogu as king. This decision was said to have been arrived at as the result of many meetings of the ministers.

It also was said that parliament had dissolved itself to make place for a constituent assembly on August 25, which will revise article 141 of the national constitution, which prohibits a change in form of government. Proclamation of a monarchy may follow immediately after it is legalized.

President Zogu has been at the head of the Albanian government almost continuously since the war. He was at first premier, and as such was driven from office for six months in 1924. He regained control, however, and proclaimed Albania a republic, of which he became president. He was elected to a seven-year term in 1925 by the parliament.

The president was entrusted with very wide powers, including the selection of all of his ministers and a proportion of the upper chamber of parliament.

DRY CONFERENCE BACKS HOOVER AGAINST SMITH

Committee, Acting for 31 Groups, Announces Its Stand in Final Report.

BRIDE SUPPORTS G. O. P.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Declaring that the present political campaign presents both the "gravest danger and the greatest opportunity ever offered by a political situation," the executive committee of the National Conference on Prohibition Enforcement Planks and Dry Candidates has definitely turned thumbs down on Gov. Smith and thrown its support to Herbert Hoover. It made known yesterday.

It has been apparent for some time that Gov. Smith would not receive the support of any dry organization, but this is the first definite declaration of support for Mr. Hoover by this composite organization. It is the amalgamation of 31 church and temperance organizations that met earlier in the year periodically at Washington, Atlantic City and Jacksonville, Fla., and when it met yesterday appointed a special committee to go to the conventions and fight for dry planks.

Yesterday's announcement makes known that the executive committee's

Aviator and Student Killed in Plane's Fall

Plainfield, N. J., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Gustave Staiger, 30, of the Bronx, New York, and Collingsworth Harris, of Cranford, N. J., were killed instantly today when a No. 10 Waco plane, in which they had taken off from Hadley Air Field, crashed near here.

Staiger, who was said to have been connected with the German air service during the war, was giving flying instruction to Harris. The plane was about 1,000 feet up when, apparently, a wire loosened, sending the machine into a nose dive.

Couple Is Ambushed; Strikers Suspected

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—The third ambush in less than two weeks was reported Saturday when Nicholas Winter and a girl companion, employees of the Allen Knitting Co., were fired on while riding in an automobile. They escaped by falling to the floor of the car. Knitters of the plant are on a strike.

An assassin rode in a car, Winter said, which charged from an alley. Winter obtained the license number.

Capital Boy Scout Chosen To Compete for Byrd's Trip

Alden E. Snell, of Washington, Will Appear With Five Others Before Explorer Thursday—One Will Be Chosen for Antarctic Voyage.

Seeking adventure in the Antarctic regions, a local youth will be one of five Boy Scouts who will present themselves to Commander Richard E. Byrd, in New York Thursday, when the explorer will select one to fill a place in the expedition to the South Pole this fall.

Alden E. Snell, 18 years old, of 1731 H street northwest, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 100, is the youth who heard opportunity knocking when he read, last winter, that Byrd would permit a Boy Scout to accompany him. An essay on his reasons for wishing to join the Byrd party, backed by the endorsement of the local scout executive council, won Snell consideration.

The six were chosen from hundreds of applicants, writing from all parts of the United States, after a careful study of their Boy Scout history. Snell is the holder of the Eagle medal, which ranks highest among awards to be won by

MAN AND WOMAN SHOT; POLICE SEEK HUSBAND

Mrs. Florence Cole and Gerald Maher Treated for Wounds After Shooting.

BOTH QUIT THE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Florence Cole, 25 years old, of 13 Shepherd avenue, Hyattsville, Md., and Gerald Maher, 22 years old, of 1669 Columbia road northwest, were taken to Casualty Hospital early this morning suffering from bullet wounds inflicted, they told Hyattsville police, by her husband, Ernest Cole, of 912 Delaware place northwest.

They were brought to the hospital by Hyattsville police, who asked Washington police to look for Mr. Cole. The shooting occurred in Mrs. Cole's Hyattsville home.

Both of the victims insisted on leaving the hospital after receiving first-aid treatment, despite the protests of hospital physicians, who believe their conditions to be serious.

Mrs. Ella MacDonald, with whom Mrs. Cole lives, told Hyattsville police Cole came to her home last night a few minutes after his wife had arrived home from the Hyattsville telephone exchange, where she is employed as an operator.

Cole, according to Mrs. MacDonald, asked for his wife and when told she was in the bathroom, Cole went upstairs. Mrs. MacDonald said she heard Mrs. Cole scream. A moment later Mrs. MacDonald, who had hidden in a downstairs closet, heard a shot fired.

The husband, employed at the Washington Navy Yard as a glass-worker, came downstairs and went into the parlor where Maher was talking with John Dyer, a friend, whose Washington address is not known, according to Mrs. MacDonald. Mrs. MacDonald continued on page 3, column 5.

Woman's Party Asks Views of Candidates

(Associated Press.)

Expressing dissatisfaction with both the Republican and Democratic platform declarations as to the proposed amendment for equal rights for women, the National Woman's Party has addressed letters to Herbert Hoover and Gov. Smith asking the presidential nominees to make clear their personal views on the subject.

"We hope," the letters to each candidate read in part, "that you will see your way clear to give an assurance to the women of the country of your support of equality between men and women and of the equal rights amendment as a means of obtaining it."

1 DIES, 14 COLLAPSE AS CAPITAL BROILS UNDER 102 DEGREES

George A. Poore, Stricken While on Porch, Is Dead in Hour.

SCORES BECOME ILL FROM SAPPING HEAT

Slight Relief Seen Tomorrow; Thunder-Showers Are Held Possible Today.

One dead, fourteen prostrated and scores more made ill was the toll exacted by yesterday's heat, which reached a maximum temperature of 102 degrees at 3 o'clock at the clock on Pennsylvania avenue near Fourteenth street northwest.

Collapsing while sitting on the porch of his home at 2222 Thirtieth place northwest about 9:30 p. m., George A. Poore, 42 years old, succumbed to the heat an hour later at Georgetown University Hospital.

Poore, sitting with his family, was talking with friends when suddenly he pitched forward. His wife hailed a motorist, who took him to the hospital. Members of the Fire Department Rescue Squad worked more than an hour in an effort to revive him.

Weather Bureau officials promised mild relief to Washington's thousands of heat sufferers tomorrow. Today, however, will witness a continuance of the heat wave unless relieved to some extent temporarily by local thunder-showers. The shaded thermometer on top of the Weather Bureau Building yesterday registered a maximum temperature of 98 degrees at 2:30 o'clock.

Girl Nearly Drowns.

Miss Polka Occall, 23 years old, of 11 East Underwood street, Chevy Chase, Md., who sought relief from the heat at the Scape Flow swimming pool, was rescued from drowning when she became exhausted and sank in about 5 feet of water. She was carried from the pool and given first-aid treatment by the Fire Department Rescue Squad. She was taken to the hospital and treated for sunstroke.

CAPITAL MAN SHOT NEAR BLADENSBURG

John S. Bailey Suffers Three Bullet Wounds in Row at Blue Grass Inn.

John S. Bailey, 29 years old, of 1121 New Hampshire avenue northwest, Apartment 137, was taken to Casualty Hospital early this morning in a serious condition, suffering from three bullet wounds he suffered in an argument with a group of men in the woods back of the Blue Grass Inn on the Defense Highway, near Bladensburg.

Mrs. Bailey who accompanied her husband to the hospital told police that her husband got into an argument with several men in the inn because he objected to the language they were using. They went into the hall, she said, where one of the men displayed a gun and attempted to put it against Bailey's back. Mrs. Bailey, she said, brushed it away, whereupon they fired at her but missed.

All the participants ran into the woods back of the inn where more than a dozen shots were fired. The State police arrived, she said, and arrested four of the men and took them away to Bladensburg Jail. Bailey was still unconscious early this morning. His condition is serious, according to Dr. Joseph Rogers and Dr. L. Wandy, who treated him.

America Wins Olympic Track and Field Honors

U. S. Athletes Gain 8 First Places, Despite Reversals, to Score 173 Unofficial Points; Finland Second; Women's Title to Canada.

By ALAN J. GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor).

Olympic Stadium, Amsterdam, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Despite the worst series of setbacks they have suffered on any Olympic track, United States athletes captured track and field team honors in the ninth Olympiad for the ninth successive time.

Americans, chiefly because of their tremendous strength in the field, totaled 173 points for 22 events, while Finland, in second place, amassed 102, these two outstanding the rest of the field.

The first Olympic women's track and field championship goes to Canada, whose girls captured the last two of five events in record-breaking fashion to beat out the United States. Their respective totals were 34 and 28 points, while Germany had 23.

In the men's events, America won the team crown any way it is figured. They collected eight first places—fewer than they won at any previous Olympics—while Finland had five victories; Canada and Great Britain, two each; Japan, South Africa, France, Ireland and Sweden, one each. This represented the widest distribution of honors on record.

Germany, returning after a lapse of 16 years, suffered a worse series of setbacks than the Americans. The Teutons with a team including several record holders, failed to win a single first place in the men's events, and only one in the women's. The meet, otherwise, was featured by sensational advances in the scoring column of Canada, which produced a winner in both sprints, and Japan, who won her first Olympic title.

Olympic records were shattered in 22 men's events—four also being world's marks, while two world's records were equaled. World records were shattered in all five of the women's contests.

Final point reckoning in the women's events were: Canada, 34; United States, 28; Germany, 23; Poland, 10; Sweden, 8; Holland, 7; Japan, 5; France, 3; South America, 2; Austria and Italy, 1 each.

Blackmer Will Resist EXTRADITION IN FRANCE

New Process, Involving Court Hearing, Relied Upon to Defeat U. S. Move.

WILL NOT EVADE ARREST

(Special Cable Dispatch.) Paris, Aug. 5.—Henry M. Blackmer, capitalist and missing witness in the Teapot Dome oil case, will fight extradition. The oil magnate will avail himself of all legal rights and expects to win the right to remain in France owing to the new procedure inaugurated here last year.

Formerly extradition was decided administratively and after Quai d'Orsay had received a requisition from a foreign embassy it was decided whether the request should be granted. A newly created court provides that extradition cases shall be argued on their merits and that the person involved shall be entitled to defend himself and demand a showing of reasonable cause for extradition.

Mr. Blackmer is now at a seaside resort with his daughter and her family over the week-end, and intends to return to Paris about Tuesday. He declined to make a statement, referring to the new procedure.

Jersey's Second Torch Murder In Year Believed to Be Penalty of Illicit Love—Burning of Fingers, However, Points to Gangsters' Vengeance.

Special to The Washington Post.

Englewood, N. J., Aug. 5.—An evening husband who had trapped and slain the admirer of his wife or gangsters taking a victim "for a ride," police believe, gave New Jersey its second torch murder mystery of the year today.

In underbrush ten feet from the top of the Palisades at Englewood cliffs, a startled motorist discovered the seared body of a young man shortly before 10 a. m. Features, hair and clothing had been destroyed by the flames, presumably aided by gasoline saturation by the slayer or slayers. The charred body, hands carefully bound in front, lay on its back. Two bullet holes, one in the skull and one in the breast, showed how the man had died, and deep gashes about the head gave evidence of a furious beating either before or after the shooting.

Airmen and Wreck of Plane Landed Near Oporto, Portugal.

ONE AVIATOR IS HURT IN ACCIDENT ON SHIP

Disaster Comes at the End of 35 Hours in Seemingly Aimless Flight.

GERMAN VESSEL SAMOS SPEEDS PAIR TO SHORE

Crash of the Pilsudski Takes Place 60 Miles Off Cape Finisterre.

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—The Polish airmen, Maj. Izkowski and Bubala, were found swimming in the sea near their crippled plane 60 miles off Cape Finisterre and rescued yesterday by the German ste Steamship reached the spot. That plane was abandoned.

Previous rescues at sea had been made in the cases of Hawkes, De Pinedo and Ruth Elder, all on eastbound flights, but the sea had swallowed up, without trace, three expeditions which had attempted to cross it in the air.

Another Attempt Expected.

New York, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—News of the rescue of Poland's thwarted transatlantic flier was received with rejoicing today by representatives of that nation in New York.

Jan Ciechanowski, Polish Minister, said in a formal statement, "I was much relieved at the news that Maj. Idzikowski and Kubala have been rescued by the German steamer Samos, and that thus the lives of these very gallant Polish fliers have been saved for Poland's aviation."

Thaddeus Matynowski, Polish consul in New York, said, "It is with a feeling of the greatest relief that I receive the news of the almost miraculous rescue. I never doubted that the lives of the fliers would be spared for Poland. Although our fliers did not meet with success in their undertaking, I believe their experience will contribute materially toward the progress of aviation in Poland."

Joseph Landau, of the Polish-American reception committee, said he had been led to believe through conversations with the two fliers in Paris that they would make another attempt to fly the Atlantic.

"I know their determination will not be thwarted by failure," he said. "Both fliers knew the hopes of Polish-American citizens were for their success. We are supremely happy that they were saved."

Hopped Off Last Friday.

Maj. Idzikowski and Kubala hopped off from Le Bourget, the French aviation metropolis, near Paris, at 5:49 a. m. French time Friday in the Sequoia, the Marshal Pilsudski, with the intention of making a nonstop flight to New York. It was their intention to pursue the southern route via the Azores thence to Halifax and on to their destination.

The next word of their progress came from a French trawler 60 miles off the coast of France and some 350 miles from their starting point, which reported the big cream-colored plane passed overhead flying very low—about 600 feet—indicating, it was said in aviation circles, that weather conditions at sea were unfavorable.

Throughout the remainder of Friday and until early Friday night the airman who assumed the duties of east-west crossing of the Atlantic were reported from any source and as the time for their scheduled appearance over the Azores passed without any sign of them there was a certain sense of uneasiness felt by those who followed the fortunes of the gallant airman for several days.

At 10:40 o'clock New York time, Friday night, the steamer Aztec reported sighting the plane at 44° 22' north latitude, and 24° 00' west longitude. This position is 1,284 air miles from Le Bourget and 463 miles almost due north of Ponta Delgada, Azores.

Two hours and twenty minutes later, at 1 a. m. Saturday, New York time, the steamer Amakus reported sighting a plane going eastward—46° 20' north latitude and 20° 40' west longitude. This position is 1,087 air miles from Le Bourget and 215 miles northeast of the position reported by the Aztec.

From then until the announcement that the fliers had been rescued, no word was received from any source indicating their fate.

Plans for the flight had been under way for more than a year under the auspices of the Polish ministry of war. During this time the two aviators were in France undergoing special training and selecting their machine—a Sequoia, with a Lorraine-Dietrich 650 horsepower motor. They carried no radio, preferring to utilize this space for fuel which they placed on board sufficient to keep them aloft for 66 hours.

Two Men in Auto Beaten and Robbed

Attacked by two passengers in the automobile in which they were riding in Blair road near the District line early yesterday, Irvin Jarboe, 413 Second street northwest, and Les B. Fleming, 41 years old, 507 Third street northeast, were beaten and Jarboe was robbed of $11, according to police. The men gave police the names of their assailants.

According to police Fleming and Jarboe were riding in the front seat of the automobile. They stopped near the District line and the two men in the rear seat caught hold of Jarboe, dragged him from the machine and took the $11 from his pocket. Then he told police, they began to pummel him. Fleming stepped in to assist Jarboe and was in turn attacked by the two men. Fleming was treated at Casualty Hospital for cuts on his face and was later treated at Emergency Hospital. Police are searching for the attackers who disappeared.

Ohio Representative Accepts Good's Invitation to Discuss Farm Relief.

BID COMES AS SURPRISE

Special to The Washington Post.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 5.—Representative Charles Brand (Republican), of Ohio, who, during the latter part of the last Congress made the first open attack against Herbert Hoover's farm policy, has been asked to attend an agricultural conference with the Republican presidential candidate at Cedar Rapids August 22 and 23. The invitation, which Brand readily accepted, came from James W. Good, Hoover's Chicago campaign manager.

Brand, leader of the McNary-Haugen forces in Ohio, in his attack on Hoover during a speech in the House of Representatives charged the Republican standard bearer with being a consistent enemy of agriculture. Brand was made the butt of his own charges, however, when Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, in his defense of Hoover, produced a letter written to Hoover by Brand in 1925 in which Brand gave Hoover his indorsement and recommended him for Secretary of Agriculture.

The invitation today came unexpectedly. Neither Brand nor his friends would disclose what part the Ohio Representative expects to play in the conference, other than that Hoover will use a "real farm relief plan" for the Hoover campaign.

Brand, like other Ohio politicians who support the McNary-Haugen farm relief forces, has not receded from his former position. The bid to attend the Hoover farm conference caused wonder here on the eastern fringes of the corn belt as to what sort of program the Hoover campaign managers have in mind in military with Brand debated the Hoover attitude on the farm question with Representative Barton, now a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Willis.

SMITH INDEPENDENT LEAGUE IS FORMED

Hansbrough, G. O. P. Bolter, Will Attempt to Win Over Corn Belt.

Organization of a Smith Independent League in an attempt to win the corn belt States for the Democratic presidential candidate, was announced yesterday by Henry C. Hansbrough, former Republican senator from North Dakota.

Hansbrough, who in 1916 led the Republican party and organized the Wilson Independent League, asserted that the object of the new league is "to emphasize the importance of the rehabilitation of American agriculture" and to convince the farmer that his only hope of relief is in the Smith candidacy. Headquarters are to be established in the Middle West, probably in Chicago, and activities will be begun at once.

Hansbrough declared he and his unidentified followers "have taken notice of the systematic opposition of the present administration to the farm bloc, as well as its defense of those members of the party management whose interests run parallel with the predatory class."

STORY OF TAXI MAN LINKS BEITZEL WITH MURDER OF WOMAN

Cab Driver Tells of Conveying Prisoner Near Spot Where Body Was Found.

NOTED CRESOTE ODOR OF PACKAGE HE CARRIED

Police Believe Compound Used to Prevent Detection of California Crime.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—A taxicab driver's story of taking a self-styled liquor still owner for a drive over the mountain roads north of this city, was seized upon by police here today as another link in the chain of circumstantial evidence connecting Russell St. Clair Beitzel with the death of Barbara Mauger, the "Philadelphia girl" he once called his wife but never married.

A week after the date on which police claim Beitzel shot the girl who was to have been the mother of his child, B. T. Redell, operator of an independent taxicab, told investigators today, a man stopped him at a downtown intersection and asked him to drive up into the mountains. As the cab rolled along the man, declared by Redell to be Beitzel, directed him to a spot approximately 100 yards from where the body of Miss Mauger was found, saying he was going to look over his "liquor plant."

He got out of the car and took a package that smelled like cressote, Redell said to the officers. "He walked around a curve and disappeared. A few minutes later he came back without the package and looked very nervous. He jumped in the car and said: 'They have located my plant.'"

Police Discern Motive.

"I asked him where he wanted me to drive him," Redell narrated, and he said, 'Drive me damn place, but get out of here.'"

As police reconstructed the taxi trip, the package described by Redell contained cressote used as a deodorant to another the odors that would arise from the body of the girl and possibly lead to discovery of the body. Traces of cressote were said to have been found on the parched body found in the mountains.

Beitzel had been riding in Redell's cab, or ever having seen the driver before.

Yesterday detectives found a pistol of large caliber wrapped in towels in a desk used by Beitzel where he worked. Beitzel readily acknowledged that the gun was his, the officers declared. He said he had taken it "for inspection before purchasing it from a fellow employee."

Prisoner Deserted Family.

The sight had been removed from the gun, which was described as of the same caliber of the bullet which killed Miss Mauger.

Another development in the case was the finding of a man's handkerchief in the car, which was expected to arrive in Los Angeles tomorrow. The clothing worn by the girl on the day she rode into Stone Canyon with Beitzel was believed to be among the garments making up the bundle.

Beitzel has remained in custody since arrested in details of any knowledge of the girl's death.

Beitzel, who left a wife and two small children in Philadelphia when he came to California with Miss Mauger, was formally charged with murder yesterday. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

HOOVER HOME TOWN READY FOR ITS DAY OF DAYS

Palo Alto and Stanford, Calif., are really separate cities, but they will be one on August 11 in playing field at notification ceremonies for Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee. The Palo Alto depot is being polished up, the city park is being extended around the huge redwood (right) from which the city gets its name, and the Stanford bowl is ready to hold 80,000 spectators of the notification. A. C. Hobert (below), like Hoover, a former Iowa, heads the reception committee.

Palo Alto, Calif. (A.P.).—Palo Altoans, see no reason why Herbert C. Hoover, their fellow townsman, should be told in a whisper that for the first time in history a major political party has gone to the Pacific Coast for a presidential candidate.

They have arranged that the ceremony of notifying Mr. Hoover officially on August 11 of his selection as Republican standard bearer shall be held at the Stanford Stadium, where some 80,000 persons can get in on the secret and at the same time hear for themselves what the nominee has to say in his address of acceptance.

It will be by all odds the biggest event in Palo Alto's history, and the setting is to be correspondingly large. Everything about town has been polished off for the occasion—from the hometown depot to the tall redwood tree from which the little city received its Spanish name. It was beneath this lofty evergreen—then a double trunk tree, of which one branch died—that Caspar Portola and his band camped on their expedition of discovery of San Francisco Bay.

The tree and the plaque at its base have long been a shrine for those interested in the State's early history. Now tractors and teams are working to extend the park on the opposite side of the railroad tracks, so that there will be added beauty and recreational space for the thousands who are expected to come for the notification ceremony.

Strictly speaking, Palo Alto and Stanford are separate entities now, for each has its own postoffice and boundaries, but the citizens generally regard them as one community, as they are in effect, for there is only one business district and that is within Palo Alto's limits.

Consequently it was deemed appropriate that a Palo Alto citizen should head the reception committee. A. C. Hobert, former mayor and once an Iowa senator, was chosen for the post. Incidentally, he was a classmate of Frank O. Lowden at the University of Iowa, being graduated with him in the class of 1885.

It is to be a rousing reception and not limited to the crowd that will be present in the big Stanford Bowl. Wires are being strung for a radio hookup and to provide press facilities. Some of the residents in the vicinity of the Hoover home have opened their doors and invited newspaper men to make their working headquarters within.

The telephone company has planted an immense pole, dripping with wires, close to the Hoover home. The house boy, one of the custodians of the property, is worried about this. He is sure Mr. Hoover won't like it, "for it spoils the view of the bay."

His worries and duties have been multiplied since the week of the Kansas City convention. An endless stream of visitors, including auto tourists from the four corners of the continent, keeps him busy from dawn to dark. A snapshot of the grounds or residence satisfies most of them, but some have souvenir complexes that the caretaker finds difficult to harmonize with his sense of duty to his employer.

"Guess they'd carry off every rosebush, shrub and loose article about the place if there wasn't somebody around to reason with them," says the tired youth—but his good nature and broad grin seem equal to the occasion.

MEXICO REVENUES SOAR ABOVE BUDGET ESTIMATE

Increase Revealed Achieved, Despite Decreased Income From Oil Taxes.

EFFECT ON FOREIGN DEBT

Mexico City, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Mexican government revenues for the first six months of this year were more than 10,000,000 pesos in excess of budget estimates, according to a formal statement of treasury receipts announced today by Secretary of Finance Montes de Oca.

These revenues were obtained despite the decrease in income from oil taxes caused by curtailment of production.

The secretary said that this showed improvement of general business conditions in Mexico. The country, he said, is in a wholesome situation, by which the government, with an efficient budget system and economies ordered by President Calles, can now handle all current expenses without counting at all upon the oil revenues upon which some years ago it was largely dependent.

This, according to financial experts, perhaps proves the wisdom of the establishment of an improved financial condition, with regard to current operating expenses, for a future new agreement with the oil producers.

The statement of Montes de Oca is the most detailed statement of current receipts which Mexico has issued for several years. It shows actual receipts for the first six months of 1928 of 183,007,122 pesos, as compared with budget estimates of 143,388,771.

This increase was shown despite the decrease of petroleum export taxes by roughly 1,400,000 pesos, and decrease of oil production taxes by roughly 3,500,000. Although 90 per cent of the foreign oil companies are complying with the new oil laws and regulations, the government does not look for an improvement in oil receipts until there is a substantial change in the world industry.

3 GERMAN-AMERICANS GO OVER TO HOOVER

Conversion of G. W. and T. C. Angerstein and F. T. Schrader Announced.

Hoover headquarters yesterday announced the conversion of George W. Angerstein, Frederic F. Schrader and Thomas C. Angerstein, of Chicago, nationally known leaders among estimators of German descent, from bitter anti-Hooverites to whole-hearted supporters of the Republican presidential candidate.

The current issue of the Progressive Magazine, published in Chicago by George W. Angerstein and Schrader in the interests of the National Historical Society, of which Thomas C. Angerstein is president, under the heading: "We admit our error in our fight against Hoover," declares that their independent investigation of official records has proved the falsity of charges that Hoover as director of war relief and later as Secretary of Commerce was a German and decidedly pro-British.

Summing up, the statement predicts that "No class of people will respond in supporting him more wholeheartedly than the Americans of German descent."

1,000 REDS ARRESTED DEFYING PARIS POLICE

Big Round-Up Is Made When Communists Try to Hold Forbidden Meeting.

Paris, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—More than 1,000 Communists were arrested just outside of the southern walls of Paris this afternoon in the suburb of Ivry, where they had advertised a meeting which authorities had forbidden them to hold.

Most of the arrests were made when the participants, streaming into the suburb, refused to obey police orders to "keep moving." There were only a few sporadic outbreaks of roughness with no serious casualties.

There were 3,500 police mounted and afoot assembled in the suburb, along with large contingents of firemen, with their hose all set ready to use, and republican guards. Numerous "black marins" made trip after trip carrying those arrested to police stations.

HOOVER WILL MAKE FEW TALKS; PLANS NO CIRCLE SWINGS

Brief Trips, With Washington as His Base, Nominee's Present Idea.

WILL KEEP CAMPAIGN ON DIGNIFIED LEVEL

Candidate Attends Service and Inspects Scene of Notification.

Stanford University, Calif., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Unless the party managers are able to dissuade him from his purpose, Herbert Hoover will make only three or four more trips during his campaign for the Presidency.

There will be no "swings around the circle," it was stated officially here today, and the trips will be brief with only a few speeches. This is in line with the determination of the Republican candidate to keep his campaign upon a dignified plane.

The future journeys will be made with Washington as the base of operations, the candidate remaining there most of his time so as to be in close touch with national headquarters. It was reiterated that only one set speech will be made on the return to Washington from here—that at Hoover's birthplace at West Branch, Ind. In that address the candidate will give particular attention to the agricultural questions, dealing largely with what he regards as the indirect, rather than the direct, means of aiding the farmers. He feels that not enough stress has been laid upon this side of the problem, a side which he regards as of high importance.

Attends Chapel Service.

The Republican nominee spent a quiet Sunday, attending services at Stanford University chapel in the forenoon with Mrs. Hoover, their son, Arthur, and William J. Donovan, Assistant Attorney General of the United States.

The sermon, as customary, was preached by a visiting minister, the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, a Baptist preacher of Chicago, who took his text from the fourth chapter, seventh verse, of Paul's second letter to the Corinthians: "But we have this treasure in earthen vessels." After the services, Mr. Hoover became the target for a number of cameras in the hands of amateurs, young men and women. He obligingly posed with his arm around his young nephew, Delano Large, upon whom he called for "moral support," while the picture machines clicked.

Returning directly to his home, the nominee conferred with the newspaper correspondents for the first time since his return from the northern mountains, but he had no political comment to make for publication, maintaining the silence which has made his campaign unique thus far. That silence will not be broken until next Saturday when he delivers his acceptance address in Stanford Stadium.

Resignation Not Fixed.

Asked about his resignation, Hoover said no time had been fixed for its acceptance; that he was waiting for the President to relieve him. Meantime, he is carrying on as head of the Commerce Department by way of long distance telephone and telegraph.

Tomorrow, the nominee will confer with Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War, and also will decide whether he will make a three-day trip into the Sierra Mountains of California. If he goes, he will leave here Tuesday and return Thursday.

He would like to see the Sierras," he said. "They are beautiful and refreshing to the soul. The most gorgeous part of the Tuolumne Meadows, above the Yosemite Valley."

Hoover made a personal inspection of the stadium here, and was pleased with the arrangements for the notification ceremony on August 11. The seats have been reserved and the demand for tickets has led those in charge to believe the huge bowl will be filled Saturday.

It was learned that Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the notification committee, will arrive here Thursday and that Chairman Hubert Work, of the Republican national committee, will follow him by a day. Work will be accompanied by Gov. Fisher, of Pennsylvania.

CONFERENCE OF 31 DRY GROUPS DECLARES FOR G. O. P. CANDIDATE

decision is based on the report by the special committee of what happened at Kansas City and Houston. The special committee's report, attached reveals that apparently what happened is that it is against Gov. Smith.

"The results of the Republican convention were completely satisfactory," the report read. "Herbert Hoover is committed not only to enforcement but also against the repeal of the amendment. After a notable struggle in the committee on resolutions in the Democratic national convention, in which the dry leadership of the Democratic party won a splendid victory—and that party platform declared for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and all supporting legislation—this achievement was nullified by Gov. Smith in a telegram of repudiation of the spirit of this enforcement plank, read to the convention just at the moment of adjournment."

"The record, attitude and pledges of Herbert Hoover, on the one hand, and Alfred E. Smith, on the other, fix the issue," the report declares, citing a list of prohibition grievances against him and ending with a plea:

"We call upon all men and women of this Nation who believe in the integrity of the Constitution of the United States to defeat Alfred E. Smith at the polls in November."

Members of the executive committee accepting the report and forwarding it to the "continuation committee" composed of church and temperance leaders throughout the country, more than 100 of them, include Daniel A. Poling, chairman, New York; Edwin C. Dinwiddie, vice chairman-executive secretary, Washington; Ernest A. Cherrington, recording secretary, Washington; Arthur J. Barton, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, Jr., James Cannon, Jr., Richmond; Clinton N. H. Ward, Rochester, N. Y.; F. Scott McBride, Washington; Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, Beverly, Mass.; Clarence M. Sherwood, New York; Oliver W. Stewart, Chicago, and Clarence J. Wilson, Washington.

Significance is thought to attach to the presence of the names of Dr. Dinwiddie and Dr. McBride. The prohibitionists are not enforcing the prohibition law. Those who are students in the conflicting ambitions of men said at the time that he applied to the prohibition heights of Wayne B. Wheeler, then head of the Antislavery League. He could not get many followers in his Coolidge onslaught. The prohibition agencies had been playing too long with the Republicans.

Dr. Cannon and Dr. Barton, whose names were on the list, did not need it to determine them upon a course of action. They have already set out on a Democratic bolting movement down South.

McBride Joins Smith Foes.

In so far as Dr. McBride, head of the Antislavery League, is concerned, though, the die is definitely cast. It is with the organization as a whole. Clinton N. Howard, who participated in the executive committee's action, threw a bombshell into a gathering of prohibitionists here a year or so ago when he charged that President Coolidge was not enforcing the prohibition law. Those who are students in the conflicting ambitions of men said at the time that he applied to the prohibition heights of Wayne B. Wheeler, then head of the Antislavery League. ## GEORGIA CAMPAIGN STARTS THIS WEEK; REAL FIGHT LOOMS

Republicans Plan Aggressive Effort to Undermine Smith Strength.

DEMOCRATIC BOLDERS READY TO ORGANIZE

G. O. P. Factions Call Separate Meetings of State Committeemen.

Atlanta Ga., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Five meetings scheduled for this week held spotlight as the presidential campaign begins in Georgia, with indications pointing to an aggressive party fight.

Republican and Democratic groups meet here Wednesday, both voicing intention to perfect plans for carrying a vigorous campaign to every county in the State in behalf of their respective national tickets.

The anti-Smith Democrats, carrying plans made at the recent meeting at Asheville, N. C., have called an executive meeting at Macon for Thursday, when the call, definite arrangements would be made to fight the traffic in the State in behalf of their respective national tickets.

PLEDGES G. O. P. SUPPORT

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Declaring himself in accord with Herbert Hoover and condemning George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., chairman of the committee of 22, for supporting the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, today sent an open letter to John E. Brenner, of Moline, Iowa, in answer to the Moline County Farmers' Union's refusal to permit Senator Brookhart a speaking engagement at Macon for Saturday, while the wing of which G. F. Flinders, of Swanton, and Ben J. Davis, negro, former national committeeman, are the leaders, has issued a call for the central committee to convene in the city.

The other two meetings are those of Republican groups, each claiming to represent the regular party organization in the State. The faction led by Roscoe Pickett, of Jasper, has called a meeting of the State central committee at Macon for Saturday, while the wing of which G. F. Flinders, of Swanton, and Ben J. Davis, negro, former national committeeman, are the leaders, has issued a call for the central committee to convene in the city.

GOV. SMITH REVIEWS MILITIA REGIMENTS ON WAY TO ALBANY

Crowds Cheer for Governor as Band Plays Medley of New York Airs.

TRIP TO PEEKSKILL MADE ABOARD YACHT

Candidate, Told That He Must Finish Speech, Remarks "It's Some Job, Too."

Camp Smith, N. Y., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—To the strains of "The Sidewalks of New York," "Tummy," "How Dry I Am," and Irish airs, Gov. Smith today reviewed two regiments of the New York National Guard camped along the Hudson near Peekskill. Both units—the famous Sixty-ninth, which sailed over seas in the Rainbow Division, and the Fourteenth—are from New York City. Many of the officers and men were personally acquainted with their commander in chief.

Smith reviewed the troops in his official capacity. On the parade ground on the east side of the Hudson, he inspected the two regiments, drawn up in line, then stood in the broiling sun late in the afternoon as they marched by in review.

The governor, accompanied by Mrs. Smith and a party of friends, stopped off here on route from New York to Albany. The trip up the Hudson from New York was made on a yacht of William H. Todd, the shipbroker. From here the Democratic presidential nominee and his party continued upstate by automobile.

Several thousand camp visitors, most of them from New York, fringed the parade ground. They frequently broke into applause as the governor passed near, or when the Fourteenth's band repeated a medley which started off with "The Sidewalks of New York" and ended with "Tummy."

The ceremony on the parade ground, peered above the river, took a little more than half an hour. From the quarters of Maj. Gen. William M. Haskell, commander of the New York National Guard division which camped overseas as the Twenty-seventh; Mrs. Smith and women members of the governor's party watched the review.

Although police have reported no acts of persons who believed they saw Evans on the street following his escape from the hospital, no tangible clue to his whereabouts has been uncovered. A close check on all firearms sold in the city since the madman escaped has been kept by police, who fear that Evans might attempt to hold up to secure funds with which to leave the city.

When the automobile in which she was riding was struck by another at Third and Madison streets, Mrs. Smith was injured. She was taken to a hospital and is recovering.

Horsepower Is Favored As New Radio Measure

Measuring the power of radio stations in horsepower rather than in the present watts or kilowatts may be undertaken by the Federal Radio Commission as a result of numerous requests for a more understandable method and to avoid misinterpretation.

In a statement by Commissioner O. H. Caldwell, it was said that "speaking of a station in terms of horsepower would probably give a clearer conception of the actual power quantities involved to the minds of the radio commissioners, the general public and the radio leaders in Congress."

Caldwell explained that "horsepower equals 746 watts. Knowing this ratio, one can readily translate bothersome electrical terms into familiar language. Thus, a '20-horsepower station' (like WBZ, WGN or KOA) means not nearly so formidable a station as one called by the uglier term of '15 kilowatts.'"

"The only drawback to this nomenclature," the commissioner said, lies in the possibility of some war referring to broadcasters like WGB, WVA, WPT and WVA as being "one-horse stations"—which, of course, they are—their output of 750 watts being about exactly one electrical horsepower."

"When the New York Governor declared the election," Dr. Work said, "the immediately alienated that group of farmers who were somewhat neutral. They now feel, according to my advice, that he has left them only the skeleton of the vague pronouncement regarding farm relief that is found in the Democratic platform, and they are somewhat dubious of the emergency ideas on relieving the ruralist."

Dr. Work today said in conference with James W. Good, Western campaign manager; Henry J. Allen, national director of publicity; George Woodruff, Chicago, and other members of the executive committee.

Reports of the political outlook were made during the day by several Republican leaders who visited campaign headquarters.

K. J. Matt Chilton, national committeeman from Kentucky, said: "In Kentucky look on this election as the people of the United States versus Tammany Hall. We will carry Kentucky because of the governor, who is a Republican, and the men—both Republican and Democratic—are against Al Smith."

"Senator Robinson will not be of any help to Al Smith in Kentucky," said the national committeeman from that State, said. "The Democratic vice presidential nominee publicly declared before the House that he would not support Al Smith, and that his delegation would not vote for him. Yet, the delegation was delivered up to the governor, who is a Republican, and will carry Wisconsin for Hoover."

Conferees with Republican leaders will be continued throughout next week and preliminary arrangements for the various bureaus will be made, Mr. Good said.

"We are a Republican State," said Mr. E. H. Gray, Republican leader from Wisconsin, "though we have many kinds of Republicans. But we are getting together behind the Hoover-Curtis ticket, and will carry Wisconsin for Hoover."

Kentucky Chief Says Tammany Will Obliterate Governor's Chances There.

Chicago, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Dr. Hubert Work, Republican campaign manager, today stated that Gov. Al Smith's repudiation of the McNary-Haugen equalization fee has left the Democrats with no program or issue for the agricultural sections of the West.

Dr. Work postponed his departure for Palo Alto, Calif., until tomorrow in order to complete his conferences with Republican leaders of the West. He will be accompanied by Gov. John J. Fisher of Pennsylvania.

SMITH'S SWEET STAND ALIENATES WOMEN. MRS. HERT'S TOLD

Midwest Leaders Tell Her Liquor Issue Is Dominant in That Territory.

PORCH RADIO PARTIES POPULAR IN INDIANA

Committeewoman Holds They Are Capable of Swinging Elections.

Chicago, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Leading Republican women of the Midwest have reported that the women of the farming States will put over the Hoover-Curtis ticket, regardless of party lines. Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, today stated, following a three-day campaign conference.

"Women of the Midwest do not like Al Smith's declaration that he favors modification of the dry laws, and most of them like Herbert Hoover's record," Mrs. Hert reported as the summary of information furnished by delegates from Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Indiana and Ohio.

Mrs. Menley Fossan, national committeewoman from Minnesota, said: "Women of Minnesota will be almost solidly for Hoover because of the enforcement plank in the Republican platform whether or not their husbands bolt on account of farm discounts."

See Big Vote Increase.

Mrs. Lulu T. Andrews, State committeewoman from Kansas, expects 75 per cent of the women of the State to vote this year, as against 25 per cent in the last election.

Two hundred Michigan women will attend a two-day political training school at the summer camp of the Women's Benefit Association, and then go into every corner of the State to campaign for the Hoover-Curtis ticket. Miss Dina M. West, national committeewoman from Michigan, announced.

Organization for Herbert Hoover will line up a solid woman vote in Missouri, Mrs. Grace Semple Durlingham, national committeewoman, of St. Louis, said.

Porch Parties Effective.

Mrs. Lillian Rodgers, national committeewoman from North Carolina, related that "many women in North Carolina are sitting on the fence, driven there by their dislike for Al Smith's wet stand and his Tammany backing, and that Republican women are finding their organization into Hoover clubs an immediate necessity."

"Indiana women have discovered that porch parties can elect a party ticket," Mrs. Rodgers said. "The women of the State are going to elect a party ticket, and that is the only way to win."

"In our last State elections we found that political speeches over the radio were listened to by every woman in the State, and that the women of the State were going to elect a party ticket, and that is the only way to win."

GEORGIA CAMPAIGN STARTS THIS WEEK; REAL FIGHT LOOMS

Republicans Plan Aggressive
Effort to Undermine Smith Strength.

DEMOCRATIC BOLDERS
READY TO ORGANIZE

G. O. P. Factions Call Separate Meetings of State Committeemen.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Five gatherings scheduled for this week held the spotlight as the presidential campaign began in Georgia, with all indications pointing to an aggressive two-party fight.

Republican and Democratic groups will meet here Wednesday, both voicing the intention to perfect plans for carrying a vigorous campaign to every county in the State in behalf of their respective national tickets.

The anti-Smith Democrats, carrying but plans made at the recent meeting in Asheville, N. C., have called an organizational meeting at Macon for Thursday when, the call said, definite arrangements would be made to fight the presidential candidacy of Gov. Smith and to endeavor to enlist dry Democrats in the cause of Herbert Hoover.

Hoover Converts Bought.
A Republican group, having selected a Hoover campaign committee of 21 members, announced a meeting here Wednesday to formulate measures for waging their campaign chiefly through the Hoover-for-President clubs to which they said they believed thousands of Democrats would be drawn.

The Democratic meeting here the same day will be under the auspices of the young element of the party, sponsoring the organization of a young men's Democratic league for the purpose of making an aggressive drive for Smith and Robinson and to exist permanently as a medium for drawing young men into active participation in politics. It is proposed to establish branch leagues in every county.

Rival Factions to Meet.
The other two meetings are those of Republican groups, each claiming to represent the regular party organization in the State. The faction led by Roosevelt Pickett, chairman of the meeting of the State central committee at Macon for Saturday, while the wing led by G. W. Pickett, chairman of the meeting of the State executive committee, will convene here the same day.

The Hoover campaign committee, which has received telegrams of commendation and congratulation from the national Hoover campaign headquarters, is said to be composed of men drawn from both factions in addition to neutrals who have not been participants in the organization. Included among the latter is H. G. Hastings, chairman of the campaign forces, a regular Republican.

Raskob Challenged By Bishop Cannon

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—
Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, tonight challenged John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, to furnish names of "substantial people in the Southern States who are threatening to withdraw financial support from the Democratic presidential ticket."
The Democratic chairman last week in a statement declared that he had received reports to this effect.

Bishop Cannon in his statement said that Raskob "has been endeavoring to diminish the contributions of genuine loyal Methodists who have the information that liquor traffic will reimburse the church treasury four-fold."

BROOKHART CONDEMNNS PEEK FOR ALBANY

Senator Denies Hoover Tried to Hold Down Farmers' Profits in War.

PLEDGES G. O. P. SUPPORT

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Declaring himself in accord with Herbert Hoover and condemning George N.
Peck, of Maine, 11, chairman of the committee of 22, for supporting the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, today sent an open letter to John E. Brenner, of Mapleton,
Iowa, in reply to the Monrovia County Farmers Union's refusal to permit Senator Brookhart a speaking engagement.

"You would not be in the slightest disagreement with me about the present situation if you knew the whole story," Senator Brookhart wrote Mr.
Brenner. He added that he is "sorry you have fallen into the hands of this gang of Tammany-Al Smith bootlickers."

"Peck told you farmers that Hoover held down your prices during the war," Senator Brookhart wrote. "This was absolutely untrue. I have the documents with the signature of Charles
S. Barrett, national president of your Farmers Union, in which we have every confidence, and instead of holding down the price, Hoover held them up during the war."

"I am not in accord with Mr.
Hoover on all propositions," the Iowa senator declared. "On many important propositions, I will be against him. But I would be against Smith on the same propositions. George W. Norris, if he were a candidate on a third ticket,
I would be for him now. But he is not a candidate and under these circumstances I would be for him."

"I have promised the farmers of Iowa if I did not support Mr. Hoover," Senator Brookhart wrote. "I have promised the farmers of Iowa if I did not support Mr. Hoover."

"Peck put out the false story that Hoover wrote the bill for the McCarthy-Haugen bill. I have personal knowledge that this story is false," Senator
Brookhart declared.

BOULDER DAM.

Reports from California intimate that Mr. Hoover and Senator Johnson are not quite in accord on several public questions. An Associated Press dispatch from Palo Alto says:

Here in California chief interest centers around whether the dam will have anything to do with the power industry, a subject which Senator Johnson, who has made the big dam in his campaign for reelection. There is no doubt that the dam is destined to have Hoover come out strongly against the operations of the organization which he contends have spent large sums of money to block Boulder Dam legislation. There have been indications that the G. O. P. standard bearer did not take kindly to such a suggestion, as the Republican platform was silent on that subject.

Cranting that the water power interests are opposed to the Boulder Dam enterprise, and making full allowance for Senator Johnson's sincerity in insisting that this enterprise is not a dangerous experiment in Government ownership, there is still good and sufficient reason for a party platform to reject the dam project as a very serious threat to the Republican candidate for the subject.

with the prospect of being made a full-fledged pilot. The crash of his machine appears not to have been caused by lack of skill, but was an unavoidable accident, the stoppage of the motor at low flight bringing on the disastrous nose dive. The spirit of Fred Stone could never be subdued, and nature will take this into account in seeking to give him still more years of stage popularity.

PRACTICAL RAIL MERGERS.

Even in the days when the country was militant in its opposition to railroad consolidations, and to control of resources, such as coal, by the railroads, there still was little intelligent opposition to the merger principle in itself. Some "economists" went off on a tangent and leaped from the single premise of corruption under existing conditions of private management, to a demand for public ownership and operation. It takes a long time for the pendulum of a big enterprise like that of the railroads to swing back upon its course. But this appears to have come about. Public sentiment is becoming quite agreeable to mergers that promise service, while avoiding the chaos that marked uncontrolled rail-roading in the old days.

Unification of rail carriers and their properties under the provisions of the existing law has been found impracticable, however, and something more definite in mergers is called for.

A comprehensive law that would cover all the situations which might arise, and provide first of all for the interest of the public and insure to the railroad managements enough of initiative to give them leeway, is advocated by many whose special knowledge entitles them to respect. What is needed is a permanent railroad policy, to place the roads upon a footing, in this respect, with the banks. This can be done without any nationalizing features other than provision for regulation by the Government—a necessity that can not be ignored, whether the railroads merge or not.

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Just how far back the mysterious disease known as sleeping sickness may be traced the medical profession probably could state, even though the layman is not advised. That it is one of the points of determined attack by the scientists of today is well known. Africa, that land of so many of the ancient ills of the race, is the objective of a sleeping sickness expedition.

A young investigator—a 28-year-old pharmacologist of the University of Wisconsin, has just set sail for the Dark Continent, and in the depth of the Congo region will give himself to investigation of the disease that claims a toll of 100,000 victims annually. Endemic in this region, cleaning of it up there would sanitize a large section and prevent spread of the malady. He is armed with various drugs, some one of which he is sure will prove effective against the sickness.

Whether or not the same disease was conveyed by the identical term, sleeping sickness goes far back in the medical history of America itself. When agents of a certain communal order known as Labadists in the seventeenth century, came to this country and finally located in Maryland, they noted in their journal, which is still extant, that the daughter-in-law of the man upon whose estate they hoped to found their colony was affected by "the sleeping sickness," and they were rather disgusted that her stupidity, so caused, prevented them from making her their convert.

Whatever the difference, if any, between the disease known by that name and similar ancient anemic maladies, science is making progress in learning the cause and cure of sleeping sickness, and in due time it will join the retreating procession of diseases that formerly terrorized mankind.

HAPPY SMITH'S LEGACY.

Only a nickname that carried with it the affectionate tribute of the people of Kansas City, and a never-failing smile, upon which the nickname was based, made up the insurance that was left by the brave officer who was made target of bandits upon the day of Hoover's nomination. The coincidence invites thought. There was one man being elevated by the convention of his party as its standard bearer in the contest for the highest office in the gift of the people: here was another man who had not risen above his humble circumstances in life, but in his death was paid tributes such as in the days of ancient Rome were accorded only to national heroes.

The same editions of the newspapers that announced the death of Happy Smith, announced the starting of a benefit fund, which has grown to proportions that have entitled its sponsors to inform the widow that she and her two children will have from it an income of $120 a month for life. Supply dealers, artisans and house furnishers have united for the building of a home for the widow and children of Happy Smith, so that they will have their domicile and its furnishings without draft upon the trust funds.

The smile that shines from the soul of the policeman on duty often does more than his record at headquarters to make him valuable and beloved of his community.

WHISTLING PIGEONS.

Equipped with featherweight bamboo whistles fixed to their tail feathers, the carrier pigeons of the United States Signal Corps hereafter will be safe from the depredations of hawks in peace times and from trained talons in time of war. If these fierce foes shall be affected by the whistling pigeons except to be scared away, it will be because they have come to look forward to this broadcasting as an extra added attraction to life in the air.

It is not suggested by the Signal Corps announcement that the dulcet notes may soothe savage breasts and cause the hawks to give up their evil ways and settle down to nonpredatory living. Yet the fact is added that flocks of the whistling pigeons are one of the delights of the Chinese, who have the whistles of a different pitch, so that the pigeons in their flight produce a variety of delectable airs.

Thus the pigeons of the whistling corps may be given their musical addenda so that, when they are flying with a message to a division to get out of the trenches, the air they give forth may be "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," or even more modern and stimulating airs. The artistic possibilities of the whistling pigeons are beyond estimation, and quite overbalance the utility of the discovery. Even a Pled Piper part might be staged for them; trained to fly about markets and wharves, they would lure the rats from their rendezvous.

Surely the Signal Corps will not seek to keep to itself the advantages it has opened up with the whistling homers. Homing pigeons have been known from very ancient times, and the Signal Corps has long had them in its service. But not before has there been imagined for them the part of a musical flying corps. Now that the discovery has been made, let it be applied to the delights of peace as well as to the duties of war.

AMERICAN MATERIALS AND MONEY.

Builders who think they can pare off an additional profit or advantage by using foreign materials in preference to those made at home have warning given them that this practice will not be tolerated. Preference is to be given American articles or materials, the conditions of quality and price, including duty, being equal. All bids will contemplate the use of American goods, unless those from abroad are better for the same money or equal in quality and supplied at a lower cost. No tolerance will be given any contractor who seeks by manipulation of bids to set aside the requirement for his own advantage.

It is well to have the matter clearly understood, that the money of the American taxpayer shall be made tributary first to the American manufacturer. It would be well, too, if this principle had more general recognition given it by the American purchaser. Every one has the right to spend his own money as he sees fit, but when it comes to expenditure of the money of the country itself, which has been paid out from the brains and sweat of American enterprise, a different situation appears.

While the rule as laid down by the Bureau of the Budget admits of no exceptions not provided for in the text, any special cases arising would be considered upon merit, so that no contractor would be hampered in doing the best work with the best materials, and under the conditions of time and quality of craftsmanship embodied in the specifications. Applied to all materials and Government supplies, the requirement is distinctly for the protection of the American producer, while it at the same time sets up an ideal of action in the general field of American purchasing.

AUTOMOBILES AND AIRPLANES.

America is now producing five-sixths of all the automobiles in the world. To those who would be inclined to say "make it unanimous," it may be suggested that some of America's virile enterprise must be devoted to another task that the country has undertaken—the production of airplanes on an equally enormous scale.

Despite all that Great Britain has been doing to squeeze the rubber market, the United States moves placidly along the automobile speed highway and registers production at a rate that violates all the sentimental speed limitations that Europe would like to lay down. England has not yet had the courage to propose a world limitation upon the number of automobiles that any one country might be permitted to turn out; but let the international crank turn far enough and such limitations upon domestic enterprise in the interest of nations that can not keep up the pace will doubtless be proposed. Figures are but skeletons for facts, yet as such they may be offered in terms of major totals. The estimated world production of automobiles for 1928 is set at 4,338,725, with 4,000,000 credited to the United States, 200,000 to Canada, 250,000 to England and 200,000 to France. These are the principal producers. If it is argued that automobile manufacture is distinctly an American industry, the same may not be said of the airplane, for Europe has enjoyed a lead over America in that branch of locomotion. And yet, in spite of the rapid development of great planes in Germany and England, the output of American planes is growing at a rate that promises to make air travel even more popular here than it is abroad.

FARM WIZARDRY.

The time may be at hand when it will not be enough to describe a farm by saying that it has fine wheat land, or good deep soil for root vegetables, or the light soil called for by melons, berries and sweet potatoes. Instead, it may be the mode to describe a farm according to its richness in vitamin-producing qualities, or its resources in lignin, cellulose, starch or proteins.

Dr. Browne, of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, gives warrant for unlimited speculation with regard to the nature and effect of stripping from the soil the mask it wears, in order that its deep traits and subtle characteristics may be chemically uncovered. Therein lies the soil wizardry of the future. The resources of the soil in grain, fruits, vegetables, cotton, sugar, poultry, wool, meat, milk, hides, and the rest will be called into being, not simply by planting and plowing and grazing and growing, but by a chemistry that goes a million fold in wonders beyond the feats of any laboratory. It is this chemistry which is to be invoked to bring forth prodigious crops, without any labor at all.

Viewing the prospect of this penetration to the heart of nature one is led to affirm that this is indeed becoming a great life, if one does not weaken!

American men spend $20,000,000 annually to support divorced wives. And this doesn't include the money spent to support other men's divorced wives.

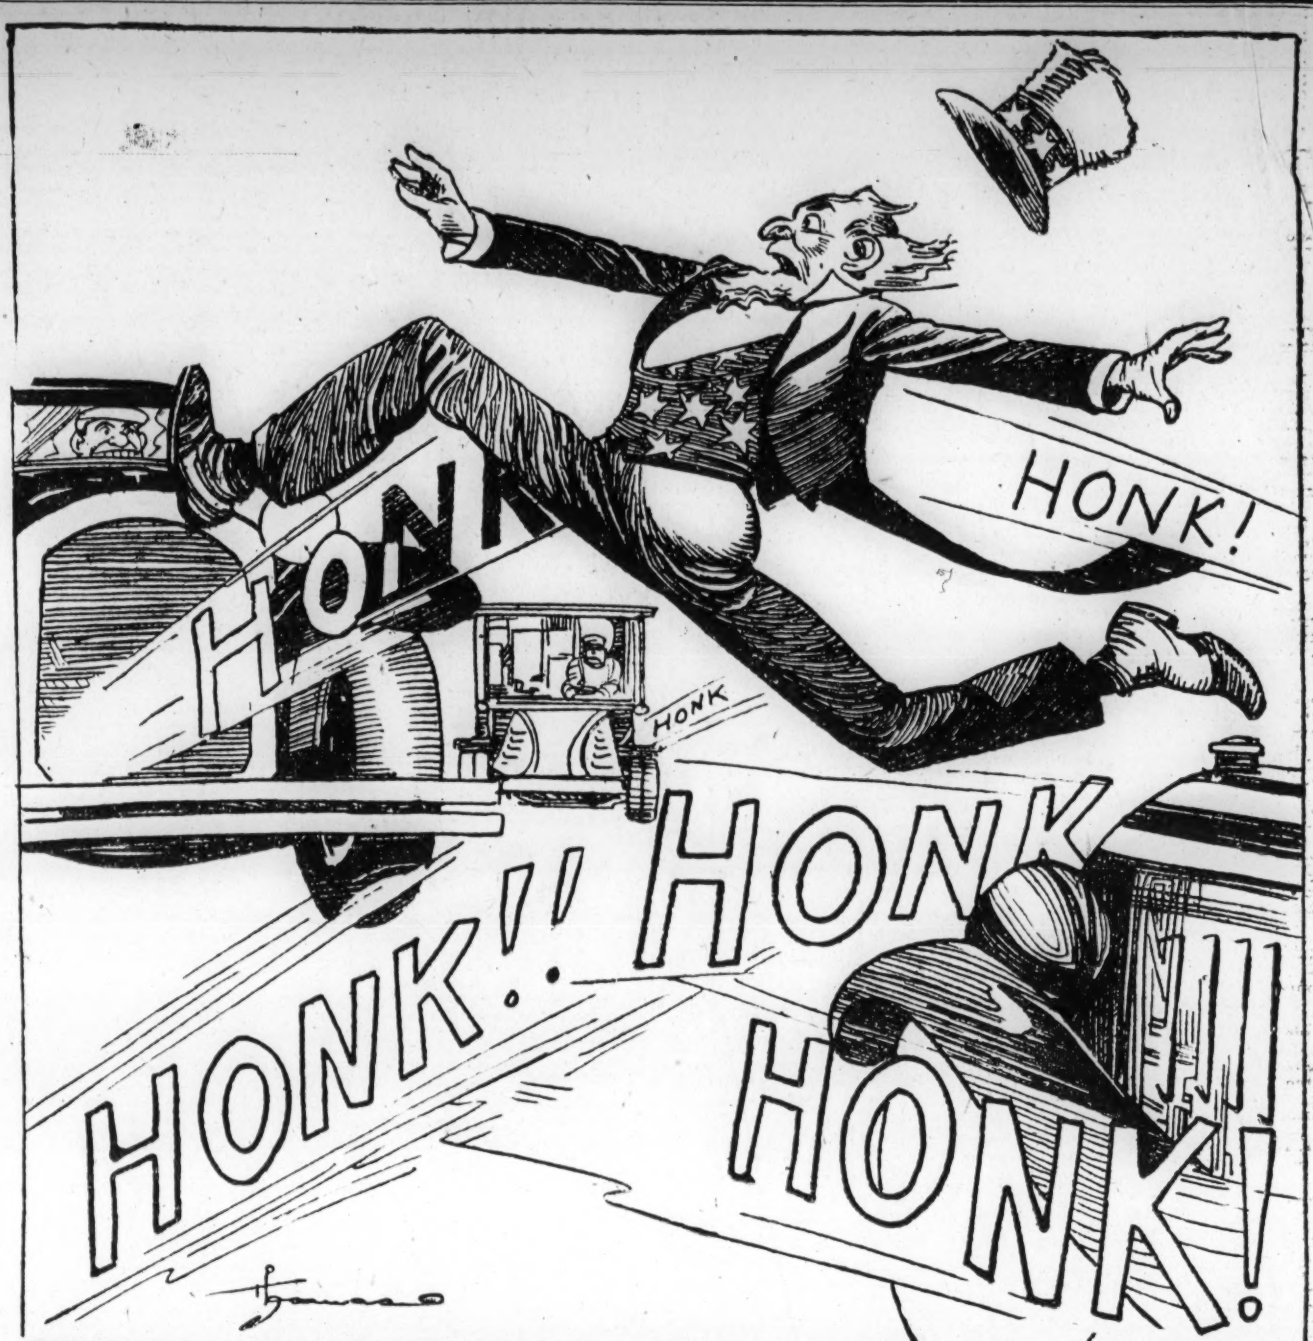

An experienced wife is one who maintains a cheerful silence until her husband finishes blowing off steam and gets ashamed of himself.

Few war-time atrocities are remembered, but occasionally you hear a fragment of French with a Kansas accent.

The "amateur spirit" is that vague something a player has violated when some official desires to "get" him.

When a woman falls in love, she thinks her man perfect except for the few little details she intends to change.

They say Americans have no respect for age, but think how much more respect is given the older parts of the Constitution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Lawn Sprinkling.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Do the regulations for the use of city water for lawn sprinkling by private owners apply also to the Government? I have a little lawn, 12 by 22 feet. Expecting to be away from home one afternoon I thought, to do a little sprinkling at an earlier hour. A policeman stopped me. Yet I have been past the parks and reservations and have seen great sprinklers going at hours forbidden to citizens. Is this just? If I am forbidden to sprinkle a little lawn during certain hours, why should employees of parks be permitted to do so?

Two Generous Men.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Two Generous Men" captions one of your editorials: "The wills of two Jewish merchants, recently deceased, are worthy of notice as revealing the broad range of their sympathies and the practical nature of their charities." "It would be difficult to match these two wills in their combination of generosity, catholicity and practical good sense."

Let Christians note that these lately deceased merchants, were Jews; that they did not confine their gifts solely to their relatives or institutions of their own creed. What a splendid example they have given to all men and women of wealth in the United States! As the rain falls on the just and unjust, so their bequests were made to the Jew, Protestant, Catholic, institutions of all creeds or no creed, extending their hands "of sweet charity" to relatives, friends and institutions caring for the poor and the suffering.

I have often thought that if the philanthropies of a Carnegie, Rockefeller, Mrs. Russell Sage et al., were at least, in part, made available directly and at once, so as to reach the now suffering poor, the results would be more catholic and practical than libraries and "foundations," admirable as these things are.

This kind of an editorial, which often appears in The Washington Post, is a credit to your head and heart.

Lee Highway Curves.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To the citizens of Arlington County and the travelers of the Lee Highway: An item in the Washington Post reports that Mr. Albright has stated that owing to the inability to get rights of way along certain points, the widening of the highway will have to be based from the center of the present roadway, rendering it impossible to make any great reduction in any of the curves which have long been recognized as dangerous. Does Mr. Albright think it fair and just to the owners of property along the Lee Highway to give more right of way for the Lee Highway while the Virginia Public Service Co. and the C. & P. Telephone Co. are using the right of way for their poles, some of them standing about 9 feet 7 inches from the center of said highway of 16-foot concrete? The poles are a menace and dangerous to the traveling public.

There is one pole in particular in this vicinity that has been struck several times by automobiles, which caused the death of several people and demolished the cars.

The above-mentioned companies should be forced to place their poles 20 feet from the center of said highway. Would they not be compelled to do so if in any other State? Furthermore, it is my understanding that the Old Dominion Railway Co. eastbound track through Cherrydale is mostly on the right of way of the Lee Highway. If this be so, it would be no more than just and proper to compel them either to move their track from the right of way or to lower both tracks and pave

If You Are a Typical American, Here Is a Sketch of You.
By ROBERT QUILLEN.

YOU think that story about George Washington and the cherry tree is buncombe, but you tell it to your small son in the hope that it will teach him not to lie.

You have a suspicion that most of the rich men compromised with honor to get their wealth, but you tell your small son he must be square if he hopes to become rich and famous.

You growl if your wife makes the smallest error in driving, but you think her disrespectful and hateful if she mentions some glaring error of yours.

You think people should be forced to obey the law, but you deliberately violate some laws because a man of your standing can do such things without really being lawless or evil.

You believe in equality. That is, you believe you are the equal of any man living, but you know a lot of people who aren't equal to you.

You hate the waiter because he makes you feel self-conscious and ordinary, and you tip him too much in the hope that he will think you important, after all.

You are conscious of being ignorant, and seize every opportunity to reveal your little store of knowledge and impress people with your learning.

You don't want the thing the salesman shows you, but you buy it because you haven't the nerve to oppose his superior judgment of what you really should have.

You day-dream frequently and rehearse the things you will say to the boss when you demand an increase of pay, but the dream pacifies you and you do no more.

You get into a family quarrel and your tongue says things you don't mean or wish to say. Later you are ashamed and wish to apologize, but you haven't the courage and at last decide to let time adjust matters.

When you are with people who dote on "culture," you pretend an interest in things that bore you and later express your dislike of the people because they made you a hypocrite.

You blame luck for your failures and take personal credit for all your successes.

You like women who regard men as superiors, and you delight in telling your wife how much you detest mannish women who think they know it all.

Criticism enrages you, but you reserve the right to criticize everything and everybody.

You intend to begin saving money just as soon as you get out of debt.

You have a vague hope that some day you will discover something or inherit something or invent something that will make you rich.

You think you have a sense of humor.

You think you have common sense.

You think you are broad-minded.

And—to make the picture perfect—you have resolved never to sign any more notes for anybody.

RULE FOR SWIMMERS.

The advent of extra hot weather has made the bathing beaches and swimming holes of the country populous places again, obscures the Vincennes Sun. And as the summer heat waves the papers give daily reports on deaths by drowning.

Oddly enough, most of those who drown at bathing beaches are people who can swim. The man who can't swim knows enough to take no chances. The swimmer is prone to run risks that he should not run. Sometimes they end disastrously.

Remember this when you go swimming. Cramps can strike any one, even the most accomplished swimmer. A strong undertow can carry the best swimmer in the world out to his death. Treacherous eddies in unfamiliar streams can nullify all your aquatic ability.

Swimming is great sport. But it is not a sport in which you can forget the simple rules of caution and common sense.

TOURISTS DEFEY HOT SUN
TO LOOK AT PRESIDENT

Few, However, of the Regular Brule Congregation in Church as Coolidge Attends.

DALE LUNCHEON GUEST

Superior, Wis., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Under a blazing sun that kept most of the regular congregation home, President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, attended church as usual today at the little chapel in Brule. Dressed in light summer clothes, the President and Mrs. Coolidge, who were accompanied by a large crowd of tourists and visitors, who attended despite the heat, the dust, and their numbers, which prevented all but a few from obtaining a view of the Coolidges, massed in thousands about the little church.

In the chapel itself, the heat became so intense that in the course of the service two women were obliged to leave.

John Taylor, the blind preacher of Brule, recited from memory the lesson, for which he chose the first twenty-one verses of the third chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. For his sermon he chose as texts the second verse of the ninth chapter of St. Matthew, the fifth verse of the sixth chapter of St. Mark, and the thirty-third verse of the sixteenth chapter of St. John.

At the end of the service, President Coolidge spoke from the pulpit, to arrive here tomorrow for a one-day visit to discuss preliminary budget estimates for the next fiscal year.

MAYOR WALKER BACK; SEES WEST FOR SMITH

Hostility to Tammany Myth, New Yorker Asserts After Trip to Pacific.

New York, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker returned to a sweltering New York today after a six weeks' tour of the West, which began with his trip to the Democratic national convention at Houston. He said he was delighted to find "everywhere an unbelievably strong, solid support for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, particularly in the Republican States of Washington and Oregon, and in the somewhat doubtful State of California."

"Hostility to Tammany simply does not exist," he declared, predicting that the three States he mentioned would swing to the Democratic nominee.

As to the assertion credited to Assistant Attorney General Willbrandt that the liquor laws are constantly violated in New York, the mayor said:

"If this is true, it ought to be stopped. I say this, though, that after traveling 10,000 miles, I wasn't in one place where there was any difficulty to see and get liquor. I didn't take advantage of this, however. Still, there was no question about being able to get liquor."

Wasp stings.—The most generally used local application after any sort of insect bite is water of ammonia. This is volatile and therefore cooling. It is alkaline and will neutralize any acid which it reaches. The poisons of insects are usually acid.

Wasp poison is alkaline. Therefore, vinegar, or vinegar water, is used as a first aid application, on the theory that it will neutralize the alkali. This it will do in so far as it can reach the poison; but, since the poison is under the skin and there is no absorption of the vinegar except through the puncture, this remedy does not always give relief.

Evaporating applications, such as menthol, camphor, and alcohol, are soothing. So is a cold cloth or cold water bottle. A 1 per cent solution of cocaine is used by some, but the effect is mental. Cocaine is not absorbed by the skin.

Bee stings.—The bee generally leaves a part of his stinger in the wound. This should be looked for and removed. Since the bee poison is a mixture of formic acid and an organic base, some preparation of ammonia makes the best local application. Water of ammonia is the one generally used. Spirits of ammonia is more cooling. Pastes of soda may help; likewise liquid soaps. Brown talcums, only soda and liquid soap, or ammonia water. Follow with cold application. Five per cent carbolic acid is sometimes used. It is a sedative for the skin.

Red bugs.—These mites penetrate the skin by the hair follicle route. Early washing with soap and water will remove most of them. He bite and cover with benzine or kerosene is effective. Chloroform, locally applied, kills them in a single application.

Tick bites.—Removing the tick by pulling is liable to cause the head to break off and remain behind, and this is dangerous. Use chloroform. Drop some chloroform on the bite and cover it with the cupped hand. Leave hand in position until the burning sensation becomes unpleasant.

CHASING VEGETABLE ODOR

C. A. E. G. writes: To overcome the odor of strong vegetables, especially onions or garlic, drink after the meal a cup of strong coffee, but without the addition of sugar or cream. This no doubt is the reason for the demi-tasse.

Prayer for summer.

For summer with its wealth of flowers. For streams to fish in idle hours. For grass which carpets every field. For cooling waters springs may yield—Great God of all, Who drew the plan, Accept the gratitude of man.

For trees which cast their cooling shade. For song of birds in every glade. For every dimpled lake and pool, For breezes fragrant, sweet and cool—Great God of all, Who drew the plan, Accept the gratitude of all.

For lightning flash and thunder sound. For rains which drench the thirsty ground. For books and cliffs and sun-kissed hills, And all which beauty's dream fulfill—Great God, all tender, all sublime, Accept our thanks this summertime. (Copyright, 1928.)

WEEK'S BOND DEALINGS DISPLAY NERVOUSNESS

Prices Generally, However,
Are Slightly Higher; Oils
Chief Gainers.

TRADING REMAINS SMALL

New York, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Bond prices were slightly firmer during the past week, but the unsettled condition of the market and continued nervousness over the credit situation caused frequent reactions which limited net gain, and held prices to around the year's low levels.

Gains appeared chiefly in the bonds of oil companies, buying of these issues being encouraged by advancing gasoline prices and reports of decreased crude oil stocks; railroads which showed somewhat improved earning reports, and public utilities. Liberties also showed some tendency to seek higher levels.

Trading again was small in volume. Efforts to remedy the involved situation surrounding street loans through increase in bank service charges and interest paid on deposits and fixing of the minimum loan to be handled by banks at $100,000 served to cause some hesitancy. The $75,000,000 increase in brokers' loans also was a contributing factor, while higher call money, which ruled at 7 per cent and slightly above, had further influence.

Although the dullness of the bond market is characteristic of the summer season, market observers are inclined to see in the heaviness of high-grade bonds the reflection of uneasiness over the money market and fear that the coming of autumn, with its normal increased commercial demand for funds, will permit little improvement in prices.

While it is believed that second-grade issues, always influenced more by day to day developments, may seek somewhat higher levels, no wide improvement in the general list is foreseen.

With such an outlook little increase in the volume of new financing is expected, in fact, a large proportion of the brokers' loan total already is believed to represent loans on undigested bond issues cluttering dealers' shelves, consequently, it is believed that only when these are moved, the loan total is reduced and conditions become somewhat more normal as regards money rates.

New offerings during the week were approximately $6,638,000 as compared with $29,621,000 last week and $38,608,000 for the corresponding week of 1927. The total is by far the smallest of any week this year and any previous year in some time and reflects market uncertainty regarding the future of credit conditions.

Public offering is expected short of $30,000,000 Middle West Utilities Co. 5½ per cent serial gold notes maturing $10,000,000 annually in one, two and three years. Proceeds will be used chiefly for reimbursing the company's treasury for funds employed to develop subsidiary companies and for general corporate purposes.

$30,000,000 Issue By Midwest Utilities

Chicago, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—A $30,000,000 short term bond issue will be offered shortly. It was made known today. The announcement accompanied news of the purchase of $30,000,000 Middle West Utilities Co. 5½ per cent serial notes by Halsey, Stuart & Co. The notes mature $10,000,000 on each August 1 from 1929 to 1931.

The issue is the largest since the bond market was affected by the rise in money rates. The proceeds will be used, principally, toward reimbursing the company's treasury for funds used in the development of its subsidiary companies and for general corporate purposes.

Fate Holds No Terrors

For Those Who Practice
Always

NO PERSON has any desire to be either the cause or the victim of an accident. And yet, statistics prove that many individuals go about courting accidents every day. Of course no one is absolutely immune, but those who have due regard for their own safety and respect for the rights of others, are far less liable to be involved in an accident than those who either willfully or thoughtlessly throw caution and consideration to the winds.

During the vacation season the risk of losing life or limb on the congested highways is greatly increased. Children are out of school and their presence on the streets presents an additional danger. People in general are moving about out-of-doors far more than at any other period of the year, so that the possibilities of accident are considerably multiplied. All of which should impress upon every one the importance of using extra precaution throughout the summer.

The time to practice safety---the time to think about the grief, the pain and the loss you may suffer or cause others to suffer is before---not after you meet with an accident. You can do your part to lessen the accident toll by your constant exercise of caution, consideration and common sense.

REPUTATION

A Tremendous Story of the Battle of Character Against Reputation

By ANNE GARDNER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

April Love, known to moviegoers as Narva, has come to the home of De Lata Thomas, her director, because he has taken Harry, her brother, home sick from a party. She finds Harry drunk. A storm arises and Thomas urges her to stay the night. He later goes to her room. April screams. While she struggles with him he is shot. Harry plunges into the room and April thinks he has done the shooting, although there has been a slight movement at the French window leading to a balcony. Some one knocks at the outside door and in order to give Harry a chance to escape April determines to draw the pistol to herself. So she lets the man who is knocking in and he finds the window, then darts across the lawn toward the shrubbery.

Jerry Wellman, a childhood playmate of April's, has taken a cottage on the estate near Thomas'. This he is writing incidentally movie for April's new picture.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The pursuit—Captured—Jerry's illusions shattered.

JERRY had begun to wonder if a hermitage might prove to be a little too much of a good thing even for a confirmed misanthrope like himself. Tonight even the music had failed on him. He would not have liked to spend it with April. But he had received the impression that April was too busy these times to see childhood friends.

He called Milton Fawcett, to propose dinner some place. Fawcett had gone out, which meant that he would not be back before late at night. Jerry strolled over past Thomas' place, hoping for at least a chat. But the place was dark. Except for the hall light that burned when the director was away from home in the evening. Everybody out having a good time, except Jerry Wellman, who felt that he could not put up tonight with the gossip at Jansen's big house.

So he had dinner alone in his studio, worked awhile at the Cleopatra death scene music, and dropped asleep in his chair.

Like any old man, he told himself, when he woke up at 3:30 in the morning, his legs stiff and chilled, a crick in the back of his neck. Also, the nap had spoiled the night's sleep. So he went to work again, to prove to himself that his arteries were not really hardening as yet.

Alone in the stillness, ideas came crowding fast. One of them especially appealed to his fancy. Hadn't they been wrong on the death scene? That regret and agony to soft music? Would that be April's way of going out if she had really been Cleopatra, Jerry knew. It ought to be a scene of triumph. Cleopatra's gesture of defiance would stand out. She should die magnificently, like a great queen, and the music should be martial and triumphant, with perhaps a background of weird, discordant string music.

He got up from his chair and wandered out in the glorious night, working the thing over in his mind. The few servants should be stricken with fear. That would be the wallings of the muted strings. But tall above their groveling the queen would stand, destroying her body with a steady hand that it might not go to the victor. For her the silver call would come with a throbbing strain on the cello, regret that so much beauty should turn to dust.

He saw that he was very close to Thomas' house, and that a light was burning in the study off the library. Good! He knew that the Cleopatra scene, even though dawn was not far away. For he knew that Thomas had no more respect for orthodox working hours than himself.

As he was cutting across the front of the house he heard a woman's scream. Jerry hesitated. He knew of Thomas' reputation, as who did not? But a woman's scream in Hollywood would probably mean anything else than that she desired assistance. The scream came again, and something that sounded like a name. Jerry felt very uncomfortable. But after all, Thomas had been so kind to him, and a woman who would be in his house this time of night could be of but one sort. Decidedly the affair was none of his business, and he turned around to go back to his studio.

Just then a shot rang out, and then another.

Jerry hesitated no longer but ran on to the study door, through which he usually entered the house, and where he thought he was most likely to find Thomas, and began pounding on it. All the time he was wishing he had been elsewhere. Probably the shots didn't mean anything. Some drink crazed guest letting off steam in approved Western fashion. Such things were not so uncommon as sensible people might think. So Jerry felt that he should not open the door and burst in as he would have been in a different environment.

There was no answer and presently he abandoned that effort and went around to the front door, which was nearer the room where he had heard the screams. Here he continued knocking. But when minutes of this brought no results, he began to be seriously alarmed. He had been murdered in Hollywood. What if he had? Around at the side of the house he heard a sudden noise, which he thought at first was another pistol shot, but soon identified as the tinging of a door. That sounded sinister—Jerry pictured a murderer bursting out, a smoking revolver in his hand—a musician ran as fast as he could around the corner.

On a low balcony, 5 or 6 feet above the ground, he saw a white figure crouching. At sight of him it streamed over the railing and made for the screening of the shrubbery at the back of the house.

A woman! And a woman's screams were heard before the shots were fired. Jerry no longer doubted. This wrath must be feeling from tragedy. He started in pursuit.

It was no easy matter, however, for she ran like a deer and there were many patches of shadow where he could not see her. He was almost at the trail. Fortunately, she did not seem to think of that, but kept in the open, evidently depending upon her fleetness of limb to outdistance her pursuer.

Almost he began to think she would, too. She could run faster than any woman he had ever seen. But he reflected that she could not possibly have his endurance so he ran on, content to keep her in sight. Sure enough, she was slackening her pace a little. But she was game. She spurred forward again in the way he knew must be a last desperate effort. By this time they were a long way from the house and the shrubbery was dense.

He wheeled like a flash and saw her—crouched against a tree, back in the shadows. He seized her by the arm and pulled her out into the gray light. It was April.

He ran around a bush and saw that the fox had gone to earth. But he knew she was somewhere about. He stood still and listened. Then it came, the little sobbing sound of breath going out exhausted lungs, the sound that he knew must come.

He wheeled like a flash and saw her, crouched against a tree, back in the shadows. He seized her by the arm and pulled her out into the gray light. It was April!

Recognition on her part, with quite as much of the element of astonishment, brought also the most intense relief. She had given herself up for lost when those innumerable footsteps kept on at the same distance behind her, and she had known that that was the end of her. She had run till she could run no more and then had hidden as a last resort. But when the man had seized her, she had considered the game up. The policeman would take her back to the house, would find Thomas dead, would accuse her, and she would admit the crime.

Then when her nemesis proved to be Jerry, she felt that she and Harry were both saved. Being after so great a tension, almost got the best of her. Jerry waited while she got her breath, his face undecipherable in the moonlight. At last she was able to talk.

"Oh, Jerry, it's been ghastly," she exclaimed. "Del is dead—shot. When I heard you knocking I thought it must be a policeman. I thought you caught me. I thought everything was over. How did you happen to get there so quickly?"

Jerry explained briefly, his mind occupied with the horror of what she had just said. Del Thomas murdered, and April running away from the scene, and only in neglect. His belief in her crashed hollowly April had been the woman who screamed, the woman of whom he had thought—if she were alone with Thomas she could be of but one sort.

She had shot him and run away. He might almost have forgiven her for being with Thomas alone at night. He could have forgiven her that she had shot him. But to run, leaving him wounded, perhaps bleeding to death. That was so unlike the April he thought he knew that he decided he had not known her at all.

His mind was busy with plans as to what must be done. Help must be secured at once for Thomas. But also, April must be gotten away. He owed a duty to her mother that must be paid, no matter to what depths she herself might sink.

"Do you have a car here?" he asked her, she was too preoccupied to notice the distance in his voice.

"Yes, it is at the main gate on the highroad."

"Can you get there alone?"

"Of course."

"Then suppose you get away as quickly as you can, and I will go to the house and see what can be done there."

April thought quickly. Harry was surely gone by now—she did not want to see Jerry to know of his presence in the house.

It would be best for her to be home when he arrived, and there was nothing to do but wait. She would not go, she could not do, and no one would safely go. So she waited, and there was nothing to do but wait. She would not go, she could not do, and no one would safely go. So she waited, and there was nothing to do but wait.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

WE CONTINUE today the subject of information and business doubles. It is most important for players to distinguish between the two and to answer both correctly. It is apt to be fatal to misinterpret a partner's double, although the exigencies of a particular hand may make it advantageous to pass when partner expects a bid (called a "business pass") made with strength to secure a big penalty, or to bid when partner expects a pass (in a case in which it seems unwise to permit partner's business double to stand).

The following illustrations may be of service to the inexperienced.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Why Be Hurt?

DEAR Miss McDonald: I do hope to be able to make my letter clear to you so you will be able to help me. Since childhood, with some persons, I could never be at ease. People of refinement and character always like me, but, lower types always want to find fault with me and would willingly slur my appearance, being very sensitive, everything would go to my heart and make me feel "blue." I never could retaliate, but would only feel so hurt that I would cry.

Now I have grown to womanhood and it seems that time and people never have changed. I am always being slandered on appearance. I am of the large type not overproportioned, but yet I do not seem to suit some persons. I am very reserved, have always loved my home and my relatives. My relatives and those who come in close contact with me love me and think me beautiful, charming and lovely. My husband also thinks so, but why some persons delight in slandering me to my face is beyond my comprehension. I can solemnly swear I never have made fun of anybody in my life. Why can't I be treated likewise?

For instance, a movie recently I overheard a girl referring to me as looking as if I were my husband's mother. If I walk alone and happen to meet some flappers they will pass some remarks and then giggle. Little do they know how they are hurting me, for sometimes I am very lonely. My mother is not well and I just dread the day when she will leave me. If living for one's parents and loving them makes one old and lonely, I can see how it helps them bear their troubles. I can't see any reward; only heartaches.

Most persons don't like big people. They hate a large person before they know what he or she is. If I could only be less keen in hearing! But it isn't the sharp hearing altogether, when they do not ever try to spare you.

It does make me feel ill. Being talked about without reason affects my heart and stomach and worries me.

Dear Miss McDonald, I do hope you can understand my letter. Please let me know what is the matter with my appearance. If you have any trouble doing so, just say so, and when I am not worried, I will write you a letter you will understand.

ANNA J.

Now, just fancy, a lonely, loving woman being influenced or bothered in the least by the comments of the rabble—for only the lowest types go about flouting their crude opinion of those they may pass. By what experience are they qualified to pass judgment upon physical or mental attractions? Do tell!

You are loved by your husband, who considers you beautiful. Is his judgment inferior to these vulgarians who go about giggling in their hands? How do you happen to give them or their opinions a thought? If the underdressed flapper of the street corner is flattered by the attention of a man, merely emphasizing their ignorance of finer types. Physically then you can find the truth, but why take their opinions seriously?

Just accept the fact that you are of one class and they are of another, with all the advantage on your side. Not until then will you understand the situation that is really beneath your notice.

MODISH MITZI

This is Mitzi's Charming Hostess. Very charming in a sleeveless chiffon dress with a wide bertha collar which falls nearly to the elbow. Very much the hostess, too, as she reads a letter from Mitzi saying that Mitzi will arrive a trifle late, but will surely be there.

The Charming Hostess is feeling quite nervous and is trying to keep calm and cool in this fishy frock which is sleeveless. Pleats—fine cascades of them—are used on the fichu and drape at the side with a cluster of gardenias. There's double tier of pleats on the skirt, too.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

The Parent Counselor.

Dr. Dean will answer all queries pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in this column. But all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address: Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

HERE'S a young girl who challenges the story writers, scenario artists, dramatists, fashion magazine cartoonists and, I guess, anybody except this column conductor. Here's her question:

"Why are girls in the most fascinating stories, movies, dramas and advertisements pictured and written about in the pose of lighting cigarettes? It is misleading, untrue and damaging. Pages and pages of romance, movie plots and dramas could be written about wonderful girls who are pure, sweet and wholesome, and they would be just as fascinating, just as tragic and just as humorous without the cigarette business."

Just about the time that we get interested in some story of a girl and wonder when, where and how she is going to do a certain thing, behold—she lights a cigarette!

This discerning young contributor presents a very interesting point. All of us, or nearly all, are influenced tremendously by example. We are all "imitators." We follow the lead of the "quintessential" color of automobile bodies, shoes, hats, hair.

For years no tobacco ad ever showed a girl smoking. Now I notice in the ads she has held the box; she may have struck the match which, set its cigarette—and heart—afire. But she never smoked. Now I notice in the ads she is beginning to smoke.

I want my daughter to stand up straight, but she sees a picture of her friend, a girl of her own age, standing more lop-sided than a garbled oak dork with the mislabeled. I want my girl to be a "cigarette," he crinkled his nose. He said, "I don't want to see pictures of girls who couldn't walk so straight or so well as her father can on a pair of stilts; it is my preference that my girls should not smoke, but that some girls do smoke is presented to her in the literature of the day with great frequency. And such is the power of suggestion that word and deed and picture that I know I shall have a difficult time of it."

Many of us have been guests at formal dinners where we have taken unwanted sips of water to fill the conversational pause. I suspect the author of the "cigarette" writer finds that cigarettes are cheaper to fill in the mental vacuum than thoughts.

BEATING THE WRINKLES.

I HEARD of a man once who sent back to the photographer a batch of carefully retouched photographs with the comment, "Put back the wrinkles and I'll take them."

Men may be like that. Perhaps a very few women are, though I doubt it. A smooth, clear complexion that bespeaks health, right living and, a thorough, sensible, reasonable and rightfully something that every woman aspires to.

Wrinkles, I suppose, are inevitable as one gets into advanced years. Yet the day of their appearance can be put off, literally, for years. Far too frequently, in these days, when a woman passes 30, the battle against wrinkles is on. Yet, if, long enough before 30, she has started to adhere strictly to a few simple rules, she should have no battle other than, perhaps, even more rigid adherence.

The prime causes of wrinkles, mentioned at random and not at all in the order of their importance, are these: Insufficient sleep, overindulgence in food or artificial stimulants, lack of regular exercise, wrong diet, lack of self-control, improper cleaning.

There is not space in a single article to discuss each of these elements in its detail. This much may be said: On the average, every adult needs at least eight hours of deep, unbroken sleep each day, if the wear and tear on worn tissues and frazzled nerves is to be repaired.

Too much food, or food hastily eaten before teeth and saliva have done their work, leads to indigestion, improper elimination, bad health, excesses of any sort, food, excitement, artificial stimulants, are bound to show their effects in the face.

A diet made up largely of fresh vegetables and fruits, with a minimum of meat, rich foods and sweets, combined with some regular exercise out of doors each day, will build surely and soundly.

The habit of worrying, self-pity, peevishness, fretfulness, impatience, restlessness, inevitably means the early loss of a youthful appearance.

Finally, not a night should go by without a thorough cleansing of the face and neck, followed by the application of an astringent.

West Virginian Goes To Hoover Exercises

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Vernon E. Johnson, of Berkeley Springs, speaker of the West Virginia House of Delegates, and a delegate to the Republican national convention, left yesterday for Palo Alto, Calif.

Mr. Johnson will represent West Virginia at the ceremonies in connection with Herbert Hoover's notification.

He had a farewell look at Thomas, victim of the bronze girl, who destroyed men's bodies as well as their souls. Jerry realized that he was being melodramatic, but he had had a very severe shock.

He had, up to the black bag and opened the front door.

On the steps, barring his passage, was a woman.

In tomorrow's installment Jerry is mistaken for a doctor by Thomas' housekeeper.

Mitzi Keeps Her Word

Mitzi hasn't arrived yet, and every one else has. No one knows anything about where she is or when she'll come. The Charming Hostess is inwardly greatly perturbed about her dinner party and her bridge tables. Outwardly she appears to advantage in a cold-dotted chiffon, sleeveless again.

Mitzi arrived at last. After they had met all the trains and boats within 10 miles. Mitzi, being new-fashioned, simply took the first plane over and here she is on the hostess' lawn wearing a hat with a felt crown and a straw brim! The hostess is being ever so charming. I mean she actually let!

Conduct and Common Sense

BY ANNE SINGLETON

WHO IS SERVED FIRST?

MY DEAR Miss Singleton—I have been going to dinner parties for many years, yet do not know how to teach our new house boy to serve. I wish I had been more observant.

First—is the hostess or guest of honor served first? Just among a few intimate friends, whom I take to the left or to the right? Does the house boy keep straight around the table or go to guests as to rank and age?

Second—are times and bowls of serving spoon and fork turned up or down? Which is correct? Customs change. It seems, with time and with changes in locality. Any other table suggestions will be appreciated.

When a country recognizes rank, the person of the highest rank is served first; and, where the household is accustomed to cosmopolitan ways, the guest of honor is usually served first.

But the custom of serving the hostess first is never incorrect (unless some highly ranking person is present), because it comes from a very old idea that the host and hostess should test everything set before their guests. In ancient times, this was a guarantee that nothing poisonous was contained in food or drink. Today, it means only that the host samples the few drops of fluid poured into his glass, and the hostess whatever dish is handed her to make sure that the cellar and the cook have done themselves justice. Whether the chief guest is served first or the hostess, service goes from there straight round the table, always to the left. Plates are changed and dishes are handed on the left. The only right-hand service is the filling of glasses and the removal of right-hand implements. Except in a deep salad bowl, serving forks and spoons are set times and bowl upward.

This way to naturally lovely skin

Remove powder and rouge each night by soap made of these precious beauty oils

"Just soap and water" is the best advice for women who want modern rules for skin care.

But not just any soap. For beauty is too precious to risk. The soap should be a complexion soap—a soap made for just that, and nothing else.

For natural charm is the urge today. And natural charm comes from natural methods. The natural beautifiers in Palmolive Soap are the rich beautifiers of olive and palm oils, famed for centuries.

These soothing, unguent oils in its rich lather are largely responsible for the beautiful complexion you see wherever you look.

Wash your face gently with soothing Palmolive. With your two hands massage its luxuriant lather abundantly into the skin, cleansing it thoroughly, opening the pores. Then rinse, first with warm, then with cold water. Dry by patting with a soft towel. That's all. A dash of cold cream if skin is dry. Today get Palmolive. The Palmolive-Peet Company, Chicago, Illinois.

Grove Gives 3 Hits, Fans 11 as Macks Beat Tigers, 5-1.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Young Ed Walsh gave 35,000 White Sox fans a thrill today, reminding them of his famous pitching father, when he fanned nine Yankees, the Sox winning, 5 to 4. He also added a double to his part of the victory. Young Henry Johnson was fourth, for seven hits before he was felled in the early part of the eighth inning. Johnson fanned two and gave five passes. Each of the young hurlers was charged with wild pitches.

The defeat cut New York's lead in the American League to three and one-half games as the crushing Athletics were again victorious.

Young Walsh held the Yankees safe in all stages except in the ninth inning, when a single by Robertson and doubles by Ruth and Gehrig threatened Koenig, who popped out. Walsh only choked up one strikeout each against Ruth, Gehrig and Meusel, but he struck out Johnson, his mound opponent, three times. Metzger got the onces clout of the day, a three-bagger.

Nats, Indians In Twin Bill Today

Double-Header Necessary Because of Rain Yesterday.

Hadley and Gaston to Oppose Hudlin and Shaute Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 5.—Members of the Washington and Cleveland teams are wondering tonight whether to look upon the heavy rain, which forced today's scheduled game off the books, as a blessing or a curse. While the showers relieved a fourth day of rain, they also made necessary a double-header for tomorrow and a game on a hot afternoon are one thing the players like everything else but.

This series with the Indians is the last of the Harrison second Western tour and it is an important one to both teams. Manager Peckinpaugh's charges are now in the first flight last year's team, the Nats, with the Chicago White Sox separating the two teams. This set called for only four games and the tribe won the first yesterday, making it necessary for the Nats to win both ends of tomorrow's bargain-day bill and the single contest on Tuesday to pass the Clevelanders.

For tomorrow's games, Manager Harris probably will use Irving Hadley and Milton Gaston. Both have pitched good ball recently, although Hadley has been unfortunate in losing several fairly well-pitched games. Willis Hudlin and Joe Shaute are expected to perform their mound duties for the home team.

The trip has not been a successful one for the Nationals and they are just about ready to admit that the Western Clubs are stronger than Manager Harris rated them at the start of the season. On their first swing around the Western sector, the Nationals.

Clarence Mitchell's pitching was too much for the Giants over most of the route, although Bill McKechnie kept him in the fight in fifteen innings. The victory sent the Cardinals into lead of 6 1/2 games over the second-place Giants.

LYMPIC STADIUM, Amsterdam, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Forty thousand spectators, the biggest ever seen at a lacrosse match, watched Johns Hopkins University Team, representing the United States, decisively defeat the Canadians, the New Westminster Lacrosse Club, 6 goals to 3 today.

The match was staged as an exhibition of a national sport not on the Olympic program, but it was more than an exhibition to the opposing team.

WORLD TRACK MARK SET BY U. S. IN RELAY; 5 SWIMMERS ADVANCE

Ethel McGary Fails as Teammates Win at 400 Meters.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—The American swimming team, the men's and the women's fulfilled the optimistic expectations of their coaches in the semifinals of the first two events today. Out of five places in each of the finals, two will be occupied by Americans.

In the women's 400-meter race, Marjorie Matson of the Swimming Association, New York, the winner in the 1924 Olympics, and youth Josephine McKim of Homestead, Pa., survived the semifinals. The only disappointment of the day was the failure of the third American semifinalist Ethel McGary, of New York, to come through the 400-meter race. In her heat and was eliminated.

In the men's 1,500-meter semifinals, Clarence Crabbe, of Honolulu, repeated his feat of the first heat, finishing with Andrew Charlton, of Australia, winning by a few inches to qualify for the final tomorrow.

Ray Ruddy, of New York, finishing third in the same heat, also qualified for the final. Austin Clapp, of Hollywood, Calif., the third American who reached the semifinals in the 1,500, was scratched today because of bad physical condition.

The first heat of the women's race was an easy victory for Miss Norrell, who took things easy after breaking her own world's record in winning yesterday's preliminary. The blonde New York star jumped into the lead in the first 50 meters and swam just fast enough to hold off her opposition for the rest of the distance. Her time, 5 minutes 58 seconds, was more than 5 seconds slower than her performance yesterday. Miss Vandergroft, of South Africa, finished second to Miss Norrell and qualified for the final.

The second semifinal produced a race as close and heat-breaking as the first. American, Gertrude Ederle, of Canada, and British, Dorothy Bennett, of England, were the main contenders. Ederle won by a narrow margin, 5 minutes 58 seconds, over Bennett, 6 minutes 10 seconds.

40,000 See Johns Hopkins Beat Canadian Olympic Lacrossemen

By FRANK H. KING (Associated Press Writer).

LYMPIC STADIUM, Amsterdam, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Forty thousand spectators, the biggest ever seen at a lacrosse match, watched Johns Hopkins University Team, representing the United States, decisively defeat the Canadians, the New Westminster Lacrosse Club, 6 goals to 3 today.

The match was staged as an exhibition of a national sport not on the Olympic program, but it was more than an exhibition to the opposing team.

Ouafi Learned His Running On Desert

Foot Messenger for French Army in Morocco.

By THOMAS T. TOPPING (Associated Press Staff Writer).

LYMPIC STADIUM, Amsterdam, Aug. 5.—El Ouafi, little brown, narrow-chested, spindly-legged Arab, from Algeria and Morocco, who came to the rescue of his mother country and captured the marathon blue ribbon of the 1928 Olympic for France after all her other sons had failed, sauntered into the dressing room after his victory, breathing normally and with not so much as a single bead of perspiration showing on his face.

"The last 50 yards from the finish line to the dressing room were the hardest," he said in his broken French, to officials who crowded around him, hugging him enthusiastically. A fatalistic Arab, El Ouafi never let a defeat get him down. He was a French foot messenger in the Moroccan desert—it was rather cold today, said the Olympic winner, accustomed to temperatures around 100 in the shade when carrying dispatches for the French army in the war against Abd-el-Krim in 1926. Disasters were not restricted to 26 miles 385 yards then.

Then they gave him his first drink since he started the grim task brought him victory—a little milk with one-third water. He drinks nothing but milk and water and is a vegetarian.

"I had been told to watch the finish, so I kept my eye on the line," he said. "I thought the Japanese were going to win, but I saw the French flag and I knew I was the winner."

El Ouafi—El is the Arab article for "the"—found the task of receiving congratulations from officials and brother athletes more strenuous than his own. Perspiration appeared under his eyes until he finally revealed that he hadn't had a chance yet to sit down. He stretched his body, rubbed down and asked for a cigarette.

PACE-SETTER

El Ouafi, Former Dispatch Bearer, Comes From 8th to Win.

CHILEAN LOSSES BY 150 METERS; ALL AMERICANS FINISH.

By ALAN J. GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor).

LYMPIC STADIUM, Amsterdam, Aug. 5.—With the classic marathon victory apparently within his grasp, Jole Ray, tired and muscle sore little American favorite, faltered and out in sight of the finish this afternoon while the underdog Algerian Arab, El Ouafi, running under the colors of France, won the event.

El Ouafi, 29-year-old former dispatch bearer in the French Moroccan Army, now in the more peaceful pursuit of an automobile factory, worked in Paris, came from nowhere in the last few miles of the long grind to spring a sensational upset. The dark-skinned Arab runner, who had been in the lead for most of the race, was overtaken by El Ouafi in the last 50 yards of the race.

Ray, jogging slowly around the oval and near the point of exhaustion, finished fifth, behind M. B. Matelien, of Finland, and Kanemitsu, Japan, who had alternated with Ray setting the pace for fully two-thirds of the grind over Dutch roads and cobblestones.

El Ouafi, in one of the biggest marathon surprises in history, not only raced the pick of the world's long-distance runners into the ground but ran the second fastest Olympic marathon to send the French flag up the victory pole for the first time since Teato won at Paris in 1900.

ROXY'S MALE QUARTET

Radio Feature Tonight

Classic Numbers and Popular Musis, Due to Start on Air at 8:30 o'clock.

"REAL FOLKS" BY BROWN

George Francis Brown, the young actor-playwright, who has become famous in the radio world for presentations of life in small communities, will return to the air with a new series of programs when he presents "Real Folks," which will be broadcast through WJZ, KDKA and WBAL at 8:30 o'clock Monday evening, starting today.

"Real Folks" has its setting in the thriving little community of Thompson's Corner, which has been anywhere between Maine and Washington all of the type familiar to former residents of small towns with a population of 100.

First there is Jack Thompson, the most influential citizen of Thompson's Corner. Brown himself takes the role of Matt, who is the owner of the general store, around which the business and social life of the community center. The part offers plenty of opportunity for Brown's characteristic humor and native philosophy.

The opening program will show the citizens of Thompson's Corner in the midst of an auction. The village band will be present to furnish the musical setting. On each succeeding week a new episode in the lives of Matt and his friends will be broadcast.

The Roxy Male Quartet, the members of which are John Keating, first tenor; John Young, second tenor; George Beardon, baritone; and Frederic Thomas, bass, will be featured in the program at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The program for the week tonight is as follows:

"Marche Lorraine" (Ganne), "La Rose" (Valse Intermezzo) (Acher), solo, "Kalinka" (Prim), "Love, Old Sweet Song" (Molloy), cornet solo; popular dance number, "Estase Revere" (Ganne), solo; popular dance number, "esterhousia" (an), "Punchinello" (Herbert), solo; "Leggenda Orientale" (Tango) (Billy), and a popular dance number.

Willie Mandy and Ezio, the Afro-American entertainers of "The Cabin Door," will return to radio listeners at 9 o'clock tonight only to find themselves, as usual, in new difficulties. The latest turmoil is caused by Willie's anxiety to obtain a sufficiently gorgeous uniform to adorn his manly figure should he succeed in obtaining election to leadership of the new lodge which is being formed.

Adam Carroll, who has made a name for himself among the younger pianists, will be featured in WJZ's "Musical Moments With Famous Pianists" at 9:15 o'clock tonight. An outdoor concert played by the United States Navy Band will be on the air at 7:30 o'clock.

Reinhardt and the German Theater will be the subject of Colby Harrison's talk at 10 o'clock.

Station WRHP will be on the air at 7:30 o'clock this morning with a feature entitled "Musical Clock." The regular dinner concert will be broadcast from 6:15 to 7 o'clock.
